BANGOR THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Thesis

MY STORY AND MY REASONS

by

Jane S. Doe
B.S., Someplace State College, 1998

Submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Divinity

May 20XX
Candidate’s full name: Jane S. Doe

Thesis title: My Story and My Reasons

Approved by:

First Reader ________________________________ Date _________
Henry Q. Smart, Ph.D.
Professor of All Things Intelligent

Second Reader ________________________________ Date _________
Mary S. Bright, Ph.D.
Professor of Things to Know
CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS ........................................................................................................ v

INTRODUCTION .............................................................................................................. 1

PART I. THE STORY OF MY STORY

Chapter 1. The Beginning of Life ....................................................................................4
Chapter 2. The Middle Years ....................................................................................... 10

PART II. THE REASONS FOR BEING

Chapter 3. Reasons Are Good Things ......................................................................... 18
Chapter 4. Being is a Good Thing ............................................................................... 27

PART III. THE LAST OF THE LAST

Chapter 5. Last But Not Least ..................................................................................... 38
Chapter 6. Sing the First Verse Again .......................................................................... 58

CONCLUSION .................................................................................................................. 72

APPENDIX A .................................................................................................................... 89

REFERENCES.................................................................................................................. 97
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to thank my colleagues and mentors and so on and so on.
REFERENCES

BIBLIOGRAPHY

